

Putting Families First

The St. John's Board of Education has been entertaining the idea of forming a group called “Putting Families First”

This group would be part parent coalition, and part sharing group for the issues families face in our small community.

With the idea that a joint effort can help make positive changes, this group would unite parents with common struggles to either work together to seek a logical solution or just simply help families realize that they have neighbors with the same conflicts.

Some examples of issues that could be explored in this group: Sports on Sundays and Wednesdays, dress codes, struggles with Lenten fasting, to some more serious issues.

This group is still in the development stages for its organization ideas, but the Board would like to see if there are interested families.

More information will be released as it develops, but we highly encourage you to contact one of the Education Board Members to express your interest or share some of your ideas.
